The Orphan Boys of Switzerland

Our cot was shaded by a wood
And near a lake's green margin stood
A mountain bleak behind it frowned
Whose top the snow in summer crowned
But pastures rich and long to boot
Lay smiling at the mountain foot
There first we practiced hand in hand
Two infant Boys of Switzerland

Alas

Now there we were by Mother told
That Father in his grave lay cold
That livelihoods were hard to get
And we be young to labor yet
And the tears within their eyes would start
For the two Boys of Switzerland

Now then for Mother as we grew
We worked as much as Boys could do
Our daily grins to this we bore
But oft the rain received them more
For long we watched beside her bed
And sobbed to see her lie there dead
So now we wander hand in hand
Two Orphans Boys of Switzerland

Annie

The Yankee Girl

That curls and waves in countless
And proud is the destiny
To see the bloom the buds of spring
Or play by the winter fire
Her golden hair falls thick and fair
Like many a wavy cord
And proudly sleek is the cheek
Of the Infant Yankee Girl

The years steal on and day by day
Her native charms expand
With her round face beams in the rays
Like the Rose of her own dear land
Their music in her laughing tones
Her deeps shades on the curls
And Beauty makes her chosen Throne
On the brow of the Yankee Girl

She is standing now a happy Bride
Beside the holy altar rail
And the sacred blush of Maiden pride
Gives a tinge to the snowy veil
Her eyes of light is the diamond bright
Her innocence the pearl
And these are even the bridal gems
That are worn by the Yankee Girl
